Business Department

Business principles and skills are changing faster than ever in the twenty-first century! Whether you are pursuing a career in business or another discipline, De Anza's Business Department can help you put it all in perspective.

The Business Department offers courses in a wide range of topics, including: Management, Marketing, International Business, Business Law, Human Resources, and Entrepreneurship. This broad selection of courses allows students the opportunity to discover where they might be interested in directing their careers. Many courses are also offered through evening and distance learning formats, to meet the needs of working professionals.

Students of business at De Anza may work towards a variety of educational goals. Some courses fulfill undergraduate requirements at universities (such as California State and University of California). Many others are transferable as elective courses. There are also a wide variety of certificate programs that allow you to progress in your career. Whether you are embarking upon your college education, a certificate program, or a single course, it is worthwhile to check us out!

We have numerous faculty in our department who come to us from Industry that teach a variety of courses related to their expertise. You can find out more about some of our faculty by visiting us on Facebook! Most instructors also have websites with biographical information; you can get to their websites by viewing our Faculty & Staff listing.
