

Visiting Speakers Series Presents....

If These Halls Could Talk

A new film by director Lee Mun Wah

In If These Halls Could Talk, filmmaker Lee Mun Wah (director of The Color of Fear), explores the issues students of color face in our colleges and universities including the conflicts and contradictions of being in predominately white institutions.

The film utilized personal discussions held between eleven college students from around the country of all different racial backgrounds.

Their interactions uncover key issues that can challenge and inform our efforts to create more supportive environments for our students.

Join us in the film showing and a facilitated discussion by the director.

Monday, June 10, 2013 1:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

Hinson Campus Center, Conference Room A & B,
De Anza College. 21250 Stevens Creek Blvd. Cupertino

Sponsored by the Visiting Speakers Series, and the Office of Equity, Social Justice, and Multi-Cultural Education. Funded by DASB.

