Working Objectives:

- Instructors will consider how they currently integrate issues of local, national, and global citizenship into their core curriculum.
- The Division will engage in a series of conversations on how best to integrate democratic principles into the culture of the division.
- Each Department within the division will engage in a series of reading, reflection, and application activities on issues of social and cultural diversity.
- The Division will participate in a day-long training on cultural humility and culturally responsive teaching practices.
- The Equity Core team will support the division by sharing resources and tools for more deeply/intentionally integrating issues of environmental and social justice content into the curriculum through a series of division teach and learning forums.

Evaluation of Impact:

How will we define success?

- Faculty will be able to identify three culturally responsive teaching strategies they will and are using in their class.
- Faculty will engage in student evaluations on how these culturally responsive teaching practices helped in their learning.
- Faculty will share their learning with the Equity Core Team
- The Division will see an increase in retention among our targeted population.

How will we measure our progress over the next year?

- Faculty Surveys
- Student Evaluations
- Survey Monkey
- We will also consult with Institutional Research Office on other appropriate means of assessment.
