

Notes for Baier, “What Women Want in a Moral Theory”

- Baier argues that obligation-centered theories can't account for their own sustainability. Why does she think this?
- Baier contends that by basing a moral theory around the concept of trust, we can incorporate both the concepts of obligation and love/care. How does she think that trust ties to the concept of obligation?
- Baier contends that by basing a moral theory around the concept of trust, we can incorporate both the concepts of obligation and care. How does she think that trust ties to the concept of love/care?