RE: Summary of De Anza College High School Participation Rates between 1999-2008

County Summaries

1. San Mateo County Public Schools Summary
 - Although participation rates increased very slightly, San Mateo County public school graduates have consistently low high school participation rates at De Anza.
 - De Anza has more private high school graduates than San Mateo county high school graduates.
2. Santa Clara County Public Schools Summary
 - De Anza had a record increase in the number of graduates attendees during Fall 2008, giving De Anza a positive high school participation rate of 15.7% (2488 graduates) for the county.
 - Another encouraging sign is that most of the significant growth comes from traditional feeder districts and high school pipelines.
3. Santa Clara & San Mateo County Office of Education Summary
 - The County Offices of Education included high school graduates from a number of county programs including juvenile halls. Starting Fall 2007, the high school participation rates for both San Mateo County and Santa Clara County juvenile halls and county education programs are not available and going forward will not be included in the overall high school participation rate totals.

Santa Clara County Individual School Districts

1. Campbell District:
 - Between Fall 2007 and Fall 2008, De Anza College attracted a peak increase in graduate enrollments from Campbell District schools.
 - 334 Campbell District graduates attended De Anza during Fall 2008. An increase of 106 students from Fall 2007.
 - De Anza attracted 21.6% of all graduates from the Campbell District during Fall 2008.
 - Every high school in this district appears to be a strong feeder school, but Prospect High and Westmont provided 51.2% of the overall attendance at De Anza from this district.
2. East Side District:
 - The East Side District shares a similar scenario as the Campbell District with a peak number of graduates attending De Anza in Fall 2008.
 - Between Fall 2007 and Fall 2008, an increase of 190 East Side District graduates attended De Anza – raising East Side District's overall graduation attendance rate at De Anza to 16.8% and 814 students.
 - All the major high schools in this district provided De Anza with an increased number of attendees
3. Fremont District:
 - Although the actual headcount of graduates attending De Anza is at an all-time high, the high school participation rate appears to be stabilizing from a drop the year before.
 - Significant growth came primarily from Monta Vista High. Other schools appear to have fairly flat or slightly increased, but stable trends in graduate participation rates.
4. Gilroy District
 - The Gilroy District has an increasing student population, but not a significant number of graduates attending De Anza.
5. Los Gatos/Saratoga District
 - The Los Gatos/Saratoga District is consistently growing in the number of graduates who attend De Anza, but is a smaller feeder district with only 65 graduates enrolled at De Anza in Fall 2008.
 - Each of the two high schools in this district have individually had better years for participation rates, however, the combined number of graduates from both schools made Fall 2008 a record breaking year – surpassing Fall 2006 by a hair.
6. Milpitas District
 - With 143 graduates (18.9%) attending De Anza, Milpitas District has doubled its numbers since 1999 making it a viable feeder school and breaking its participation rate record during Fall 2008.

7. Morgan Hill District
 - Morgan Hill District schools' participation rates at De Anza have dwindled from 10.6% (59 students) in 1999 to 3.1% (19 students) in 2008.
8. Mountain View/Los Altos District
 - The Mountain View/Los Altos District has a growing population and participation rates at De Anza consistently fluctuate between 6% to 8%. Despite high headcount, the participation rate is normal.
9. Palo Alto District
 - Palo Alto District schools have consistently low participation rates at De Anza.
10. San Jose District
 - The San Jose District has a 10-year average headcount enrolled at De Anza of 246 graduates. The graduate headcount for 2008 is 249 - within just a few points of that and fitting in perfectly with the 10-year average. Also this district has not had much growth in the number of graduates.
 - The alternative school population has more than tripled in the last 10 years. Looking at the data, it appears that each of the main San Jose District schools has an associated alternative school that is gleaning some of the numbers into the alternative school population. If so, this may be artificially inflating individual high school participation rates at a number of schools.
11. Santa Clara District
 - Santa Clara District's participation rates have been on an upswing since Fall 2004 with 20.3% (173) of Santa Clara graduates attending De Anza during Fall 2008.
 - 28.2% of Santa Clara High School graduates attend De Anza with a record high of 97 in 2008.

San Mateo County Individual School Districts

1. All San Mateo County School Districts
 - The high school participation rates and headcounts at these districts remain consistently low.
