Exam questions will be designed so as to allow you to show that you have kept up with course readings. I strongly encourage you to use the actual readings and class discussions as your primary study tools. They are more reliable than sources like the Wikipedia, and will be more relevant to the questions you’ll see on the exam.

I also encourage you to visit the website for the Cahn book where you can find flashcards and sample multiple choice questions based on our readings. These are excellent resources, and can serve to supplement your understanding of the readings.
