Commencement Speakers

Samere Bhatt

Samere Bhatt wasn't sure what he wanted to do when he first came to college. But at De Anza, he helped build a community and found his own direction.

Bhatt, 21, has been active at the new Pride Center on campus, where he helped organize events for LGBTQ+ students and the college as a whole. After studying Energy Management and Building Science, he is transferring to California State University, Northridge, and plans to earn a bachelor's degree in urban planning.

"I don't have it all figured out, but I have a much better idea," he said. "And I owe it all to the people I met here at De Anza."

A San José native, Bhatt graduated from Silver Creek High School. He chose De Anza because of its academic reputation and soon joined the LGBTQ+ Student Alliance, which led him to the Pride Center.

Bhatt credits Jamie Pelusi, the Pride Center faculty coordinator, with helping to foster a supportive space for LGBTQ+ students. Since it opened last fall, he said the center has become "a big and beautiful community."

"Samere has been an incredibly strong leader in the Pride Center," Pelusi said. "He has supported the creation of partnerships with other organizations on campus, as well as the local community."

Bhatt said he felt welcomed in his first year, when he took an online Statistics course taught by instructor Lisa Mesh. It was the early phase of the COVID-19 pandemic, when many students were new to online learning, but he said Mesh "did a great job of helping our class feel like a family."

This year's grads have faced numerous challenges, including encroachment on LGBTQ+ civil rights around the country. Even so, Bhatt said, "we made it here, and we should be proud of that."

Sofia Nonga

Some of Sofia Nonga's favorite moments at De Anza occurred when she was connecting with other students through the Student Success Center and the Black Student Union.

"I felt strongest when I was in a community and backed by a community," she said. "At De Anza, we are a diverse community, but despite our various backgrounds we're able to come together."

Nonga, 20, is heading this fall to the University of California, Los Angeles, where she plans to study business economics after earning associate degrees in Liberal Arts and Business Administration.

While at De Anza, she worked as a writing and reading tutor at the Student Success Center. A lifelong San José resident, she loved getting to know other students through tutoring, especially those from other countries and backgrounds.

"I learned a lot from them" she said. "Hearing their stories of coming from other countries really inspired me to work toward my goals."

She also became active with the BSU and served as its president. When she came to De Anza in 2021, many classes were still offered remotely and there weren't a lot of people on campus. That made it challenging to connect with other Black students.

"We're already a small population at De Anza," she explained. But in the BSU, Nonga she found friends who supported each other academically and socially. Members of the group volunteered with a program that assists homeless and low-income individuals.

Nonga played a big role in making the BSU a vibrant organization, said the group's adviser, counselor Maurice Canyon. He praised her leadership abilities and added, "Sofia is a great student academically and contributes to the campus community."

President's Awards

The $3,500 President's Award is presented annually to graduating students who have overcome adversity and shown perseverance in seeking an education at De Anza.

Thomas Jia

President's Award recipient Thomas Jia went through some rocky times as a teen and young adult. But the 22-year-old is graduating from De Anza this year and heading to the University of California, Berkeley, to study economics this fall.

Jia credits the Guardian Scholars program at De Anza with providing needed resources and support. The program assists students who are current or former foster youth.

Flora Payne, the Guardian Scholars counselor, "encouraged me to not limit my options," Jia said, adding that she assisted him with finding financial aid, planning his classes and applying to transfer institutions – while also providing moral support.

As a teenager, Jia spent several years in foster care, changed high schools more than once and later associated with some people who were engaged in activities outside the law. But the violent death of a close friend in 2020 led Jia to reconsider his own future. Although he had tried another college before, Jia said he decided to enroll at De Anza.

It wasn't easy at first. Jia said he had to re-learn how to take notes, study and manage his time. While at De Anza, he also worked full-time as a contractor doing marketing for a company that makes video games. He landed the job through an internship program offered by a nonprofit that provides job training for low-income young adults.

Payne was impressed by Jia's dedication to his goals. "His focus, diligence and perseverance are awe-inspiring," she said.

Jia is earning two associate degrees in Business Administration and Economics. He hasn't settled on a career field, although he is interested in working with data as an analyst or consultant. And while he expects his classes at Berkeley will be challenging, he said his time at De Anza equipped him with valuable skills for studying, and for life.

Amanda Tackwell

Shortly before he died in 2020, Amanda Tackwell's father told her that he dreamed she was in college. She had spent the last two decades working – as a waitress, a caregiver for her sick father and a single mom to a young daughter with autism spectrum disorder.

Tackwell, 37, is graduating with an associate degree in Cybersecurity and transferring to a bachelor's degree program in Information Science and Data Analytics at San José State.

Coming to De Anza "changed my life forever," said Tackwell, who was drawn to her new career field because it involves teamwork and intellectual challenge.

Her father's death was a turning point: He had urged her to go back to school and get help for some personal issues. A month after he died, she enrolled at De Anza. And after a long fight with alcohol and drugs, Tackwell joined a 12-step program, which led to accepting a higher power in her life and becoming sober.

Returning to school was "scary – I didn't know if I could do it," said Tackwell, who had limited finances and a 2-year-old daughter at home. But some "amazing" instructors encouraged her along the way.

Instructor Mo Geraghty, who is retiring from the Math Department, and Patricia Holmes, who teaches in Computer Information Systems, were especially helpful and empathetic, Tackwell said. A computer security course taught by instructor Mark Sherby was inspiring: "He's so smart and so motivating. I must have asked a million questions, and he answered every question I asked," she said.

"She did not let anything slow her down on her determined path to success," Sherby said about Tackwell. "She also made time to reach out to help other students in the class."

As each quarter passed, Tackwell became more confident. That first quarter at De Anza was her father's dream, she said. "I didn't know it was going to turn into mine."

DeHart Scholarship

The $2,000 A. Robert DeHart and Rena Frabony DeHart Memorial Scholarship honors De Anza's founding president and is awarded for service to the college community.

Ivette Contreras Hernandez

Ivette Contreras Hernandez is looking forward to taking Women's and Chicana Studies classes at the University of California, Santa Barbara, this fall. But her long-term goal is to become a lawyer, helping low-income and immigrant clients.

Contreras Hernandez, 20, is an immigrant herself, and a first-generation college student who worked at several jobs while going to college. She's graduating this spring with a degree in Liberal Arts.

While at De Anza, Contreras Hernandez ran with the Track and Field team and was a paid intern for HEFAS, or Higher Education for AB 540 Students, which provides support for undocumented students.

She loved running and seeing teammates improve their times – even by a second or two. "Small progress really does mean something in the long run," she said. But she's most proud of her work organizing mental health workshops and other activities for HEFAS students.

While many students face mental health challenges, she said, undocumented students confront extra hurdles, "not just because of stigmas but also the challenge of finding a place to get help that is affordable and won't deny someone for not having a social security number."

Contreras Hernandez, who graduated from Woodside High School in San Mateo County, chose De Anza for its academic reputation before she decided on a major. A class in Women's Studies, taught by instructor Julie Keiffer-Lewis, helped Contreras Hernandez discover her own potential. She also drew encouragement from counselor Bianca Melendez and HEFAS program coordinator Shaila Ramos.

"The determination and perseverance she's shown needs to be celebrated," Keiffer-Lewis said of her former student.

As a lawyer, Contreras Hernandez wants to help clients with immigration issues as well as contracts, taxes and other financial matters. Too many immigrants, especially those still learning English, are vulnerable to being exploited, she said. "I want to defend and support my community."

Karl S. Pister Award

The Karl S. Pister Leadership Opportunity Award provides a $20,000 scholarship to a De Anza student who is transferring to the University of California, Santa Cruz.

Katherine Hernandez

A political science class at De Anza helped set Katherine Hernandez on the path she's traveling today: She is transferring to the University of California, Santa Cruz, this fall and hopes to build a career in public policy.

Encouraged by Political Science instructor Robert Stockwell, Hernandez applied for an internship that led to her working on registration drives and voter education during the 2020 elections. She recruited and mentored other students, organized Zoom presentations on why voting matters, and helped get more than 2,000 students to register as voters.

"I like talking to people about the issues that matter to them," she said.

After earning two associate degrees at De Anza last year – in Political Science and Liberal Arts – the first-generation college student took time off to work before resuming her studies this fall. She plans to earn her bachelor's degree in Political Science and is thinking about law school after that.

Public service isn't new for the 22-year-old. When she was younger, her mother would bring her to citizenship fairs, where Hernandez volunteered as a translator helping recent immigrants learn about the citizenship process. She also held other jobs during college, including working as a barista, to help with family expenses.

Hernandez said her mother stressed the importance of serving others. Hernandez also credits Stockwell with showing her that, "yes, there's work to do in class, but it's also important to be engaged in the community."

Stockwell said his former student showed determination and leadership during her internship, along with "a genuine interest" in community service.

Hernandez credits De Anza with helping foster that interest. "De Anza is a place where you can find community, which can be rare at many colleges," Hernandez said. "You can get a lot of assistance from professors and staff, who are there for you."

Student Leadership Awards

The Student Leadership Award is a project of the De Anza Student Government and the Vasconcellos Institute for Democracy in Action (VIDA). These students have demonstrated extraordinary leadership in the last year.

De Anza College and the Villages

De Anza offers a broad range of academic and career programs, cultural activities, sports and social events to nearly 16,000 students each quarter. Students can choose from more than 80 associate degrees, more than 135 certificates and approximately 1,800 courses.

While students have many options, everyone at De Anza is invited to join one of six Villages established in 2021. These are supportive communities of students, faculty and staff, organized around related majors. The Villages offer resources and activities keyed to students' academic interests and goals. Each Village has its own webpage, an online instructional site and a designated physical space on campus where students can meet peers, instructors and counselors – to study or just hang out.

The six Villages are:

- Artistic Expression
- Business and Finance
- Health and Life Sciences
- Language and Communication
- Physical Sciences and Technology
- Social Sciences and Humanities

SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES

Students attending De Anza enjoy the whole college experience. They can join one of 70 student clubs or start a new one; walk through time at the California History Center; visit the stars at the Planetarium; explore the diversified ecosystems of the Cheeseman Environmental Study Area; and join or root for a sports team – there are 17 to choose from.

An education at De Anza isn't just about books and tests. Students also discover a diversity of people representing cultures from around the world and learn how to become fully engaged, politically aware citizens. Many students find opportunities for community service learning through the college's Vasconcellos Institute for Democracy in Action.

Classes and activities are held in in state-of-the-art facilities, many funded through generous support of local voters. The college is committed to environmental sustainability both in building design and operations.

De Anza consistently ranks at or near the top among California community colleges in the number of transfers to the University of California and California State University campuses.

In addition, more than 50,000 friends and neighbors participate in De Anza's Community Education programs each year, including the Child Development Center, De Anza College Planetarium, Euphrat Museum of Art, noncredit Short Courses and the De Anza College Academy for youth.

College Mission Statement

De Anza College provides an academically rich, multicultural learning environment that challenges students of every background to develop their intellect, character and abilities; to realize their goals; and to be socially responsible leaders in their communities, the nation and the world.

De Anza College fulfills its mission by engaging students in creative work that demonstrates the knowledge, skills and attitudes contained within the college's Institutional Core Competencies:

- Communication and expression
- Information literacy
- Physical/mental wellness and personal responsibility
- Civic capacity for global, cultural, social and environmental justice
- Critical thinking
